EDGE

Living on the edge -Daring to push beyond -Feeling accomplished and proud! Stride with certainty to the very edge and even beyond. Strive to be the very best. Struggle to put on that achieving extra effort. Go beyond what is usual, normal, accepted, expected. Reach out for it all and know what it means to live on the edge.

Between classes, Morris Williams and Shona Weems take a moment to enjoy the hall movement.

So- Long- Summer

The summer is over. Now it's time to return to school. Many of us dread this time of year from the time we get out in June until we are already several weeks into the school year. We don't like giving up the freedom of summer to the seemingly endless days of tests, homework, and teachers. However, we must face it, and we do. After a while we find out that it's really not that bad after all. We're with our friends who are suffering right along with us, which makes it a little easier. Soon the school work becomes routine and the days and weeks pass by, slowly but surely. Before you know it, summer is here again and we regain that freedom we lost nine months earlier. Then we are free, free to worry about the upcoming school year in the fall.

The fine details are very important as shown by Kristin and Cari Stark as they prepare for the Homecoming pep-session.

Sometimes you just have to let loose and act crazy. Showing their smiles are Tami Jackson, Mary Phifer, and Artelia Wilkes.

Stepping off the bus on his way to another day of school is Norman Moore.

Coming to school can seem to be a real drag sometimes. Lesia Benjamin and Youlanda Kinnie's faces show their feelings as they make their way to the doors.

those pearly whites! Pictured are Lisa Berry, Angie Scott, Michelle Keiso, Lenny Bowen, Artelia Wilkes, Mary Phifer, Tami Jackson, and Larry Veezy.

Look at that spirit! Jeff Spillers knows how to show his school spirit even as he rushes from one class to another.

SPIRIT! — Alive and Well

The essence of the year coalesces during spirit week. This is the one week out of the year that students and staff really go to the limit to show their creativity and pride in their school. The fun-filled days are inundated with excitement and wonder at the activities of the week. The smiling faces of exhilarated EHS students fill the decorated hallways as punkers and sockhoppers pass by. The week ends with the Homecoming game. Win or lose, the memories and feelings of the week live on and are a fondly remembered part of high school life.

Jeff Moyer and a friend enjoy spirit week's PJ day as they walk down the hall together.

What strange disease has affected this group of EHS students? It's called school spirit and during spirit week it was an epidemic. Pictured are Patty Davis, Keith Foreman, Kris Foreman, Chris Harter, and Tom Krouse.

Go ahead and jump for school spirit at EHS! Varsity cheerleader Wendy Dirig goes to the limit to raise the excitement of the crowd.

Coach Tom Smith draws the attention of both crowd and team with a few inspirational words on the game against Bishop Dwenger that evening.

Mr. Football 1986, Tom Krouse, steps up to the microphone to thank all who helped him.

The sophomore float members included Wendy Stein, Sandy Mann, and Wendy Schmeling.

Three Cheers for Old EHS!

This year's pep session was about the best one that we've ever had. The decorations were stupendous as were the participants and the crowd. Enthusiasm was the best in years, reminding us how a pep session should be. This year was a great example of how much fun EHS spirit can really be!

Seniors Continue Tradition of Success

The drizzling rain didn't subdue the two teams' enthusiasm at the Senior-Junior Powderpuff game. On a muddy field, the seniors struggled to retain their reign over the determined juniors. The "cheerleaders" kept the crowd going at half-time by displaying their cheers and challenging the sophomores to a game of tug-o-war. After half-time the battle continued, and the seniors, for the second year in a row, came out on top.

Tyra Richardson charges down the field, pushing the seniors towards their eventual win over the juniors.

The lovely junior powderpuffers pause a moment to show their stuff in between cheers.

It's a good thing beauty is only skin deep, or this group of "girls" might be in a little trouble. According to fan response, the senior powder-puff cheerleaders were a very large factor in this year's game.

A vision of beauty, this young "lady", Dean Barrett, anxiously awaits the start of the game.

Eric Nelson smashes onto the football field as the cheerleaders give him a very warm welcome.

Brad Firrie and Eric Dorias give each other "ten" for a fine play as Coach Tom Smith stands by.

Saints March by Trojans

When it comes to school spirit it's hard to beat Elmhurst High. This was very obvious to those who attended this year's Homecoming game. Even with the threat of rain, many Elmhurst students from both the past and the present packed the bleachers to give the Trojan football players support as they rivaled off against the Bishop Dwenger Saints. In this grueling match-up of strength and durability, the Trojans fought with all they had, but unfortunately were unable to stop the superb playing of the Saints. Although we didn't win, one good thing did result from the game. This was the first year we played on our own field instead of Wayne's. This proved to be a success and looks to be a prime factor in homecomings to follow.

Coach Tom Smith has a few words with the referee in between plays.

The hardy Trojan defense faces off against the Saint's mighty offense in an effort to stop the Saint's drive down the field to the Elmhurst end zone.

With glimmering smiles, freshman court member, DeCarlo Reynolds and her escort, Tim Townsend, are presented to the crowd.

Arm-in-arm, senior Tanza Imhoff and escort Neil Fanger make their way towards the bleachers.

A Night to Remember

As the first half ended, the bleachers were pulled out and the homecoming court made their way along the track. The senior court members this year were: Nathalie Aguilar escorted by Tom Uhrick, Jenny Clements escorted by Greg Durnell, Tanza Imhoff escorted by Neil Fanger, Tyra Richardson escorted by Bernard Williams, and Kim Mazzola escorted by Rick Stanley. All of the court members were lovely, but one had to be chosen above the rest to be Homecoming Queen 1986. Missy Richards, Homecoming Queen 1985, had the honor of passing her crown on to Tyra Richardson. At the announcement of the queen, several hundred balloons were let loose into the night air as the band began to play. Homecoming '86 was moving into high gear.

After receiving her crown and roses, Homecoming Queen Tyra Richardson smiles as she takes her throne.

Dancing into the Night

Retreating from the muggy, rain-dampened night, masses of students crammed into the gaily decorated gym. Blaring music and elated students, both past and present, gave new meaning to the word "noise". The dancing continued well into the night as Mr. Kendall played hit after hit to the thrill of the crowded dance floor. This finale of spirit week provided an outlet for the excitement which had been building up all week in EHS students. More than anything else, however, the dance was just a good, fun time that gave a perfect ending to a great spirit week '86.

Just relax and let your body sway to the beat of the music. The dance was a good place to be with your friends and have a great time as the spirit week celebration came to an end.

Many emotions and personalities can be seen in the faces of the crowd. Shown here are Michelle Mowan, Shane Stevens, Foxy Beamer, Jose Montalvo, Tony Mante, and Gabrielle Schmidt.

Demonstrating a new dance move is Charles Backs, as Ric Weber intently watches.

Dissecting a frog in biology class can't be so catastrophic that Jamie Codling has to use the old throw-'em-over-the-shoulder trick. The blood rushes to Josh Eisbart's head.

"Starting the Climb"

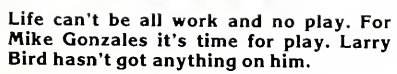

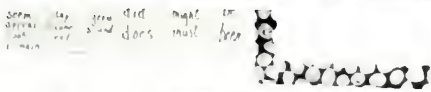

Those First Steps

After conquering middle school, freshmen were faced with yet another challenge: high school. In Starting the Climb to the top, endurance and hard work were displayed by the freshmen. With help from fellow students the class of '90 has successfully made a name for themselves. The years that await them are going to be demanding of them just as this past year has been. Being able to have fun is going to make the difference. The Freshmen Class has displayed this quality.

Realizing that high school is not always hard work, Stacy Singleton and Kris Helmer find time to catch up on the latest news flashes.

Make-up techniques are a skill that Jeff Starns has seemed to acquire as he "touches up" during the fall play "Our Town."

Being helped out of the limo by the chauffeur, Marcy Pace makes the kind of entrance anyone would envy.

Selling candy really paid off as Kinda Vulgamott, Kim Weprin, Marcy Pace, and Gwen Horstmeyer get ready for their free limo ride.

Taking Josh Golm's blood pressure is Teisha Squire's way of helping out during Health Week.

Derrick Milton chows down refreshments at an Afro-American Club meeting in the Media Center.

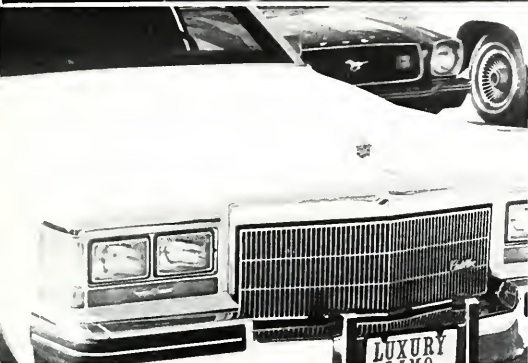

Jamie Gasvoda accepts the responsibility of caring for the baby even while attending the Freshman Parent Coffee.

Get Involved!

What does a freshman do besides go to class? Well, that's a good question. What CAN a freshman do? Just about anything, actually. When a ninth grader walks into Elmhurst, there are so many opportunities to "Get Involved", it's almost mind-boggling. Athletics, the school play, or any other club always invite freshmen to meetings, looking for members. Sure, you may be nervous about walking into the class meeting alone, but extra-curricular activities are a great way to have fun and make friends. And if you don't have time for everything as a freshman, you still have three years left to fit it in!

Josh Eisbart and Emilio Robles perform a skit for the Freshman Parent Coffee.

BOYS

The search is over! After a long and painful search, Chris Webster and Art Aleshire have, at long last, found their destination.

If nothing else, Elmhurst toilets are clean. The hand eagerly points to this fine example of cleanliness.

Chris Webster demonstrates his opinion of those who smoke in the restroom.

The RESTROOMS!

"May I use the restroom — It's an emergency!" "Meet me in the restroom after science." "Lisa loves Todd" "Todd loves Lisa" "Man! It is impossible to get from Spanish to drafting and go to the restroom in five minutes." Restrooms are usually the first place that freshmen discover. The activities that go on in the restrooms range from fixing one's hair to doing handstands in the trash cans. Learning to get the most use out of the restrooms is part of expanding one's knowledge.

One of the less appealing places in the restroom is the depths of the trash cans.

“Hey Kid, Want to buy an elevator pass?”

The age old prank of selling an elevator pass to freshmen has faded out in the past few years. Dave Avdul said, “I figured Rod McDougall was joking but wasn’t sure.” As Dave stated, “Luckily I found out there was no elevator at Elmhurst.” Contrary to popular rumor, freshmen at Elmhurst are not overly harassed or terrorized by upper classmen. If they are, then nobody is saying anything about it. The only incident of freshmen initiation that could be verified is the shaving cream initiation at band camp.

Having survived most of his freshman year without an elevator pass Dave Avdul sits with his mom at the Freshmen Honors Reception.

Kim Weprin and Gwen Horstmeyer . . . is it really them? . . . laugh it up during a shaving cream initiation at band camp.

LUNCH!!!

At the beginning of each school year most freshmen have different fears and opinions of the cafeteria. Two common fears are not knowing who to sit with, or just doing something stupid in the cafeteria. For other students the cafeteria is the same as in middle school except with more people and no assigned tables. After a while, though, most freshmen lose their fears.

Lunch is much more than a time to eat for Araina Weemes and Arnez Reynolds. It is also a time to kick-back and relax.

Freshmen Fear?

A feeling that most freshman experience is fear. The following quotes tell what some of those fears were. "I was very frightened that I was going to get lost and not be able to find my classes and everyone would be mean and get me lost." "My greatest fear was that I would have a bunch of teachers that I hated and, YES it came true." "I was scared I'd get bad grades." "My greatest fear was being a freshman and some big senior coming after me."

Showing no fear Deanna Smith addresses the Freshman Parent Coffee telling how schools, students, and education has changed the last 40 years.

Meeting new people and making new friends isn't easy but Ashley Franklin and Brian Medina have learned to overcome that shy feeling.

Gaining Confidence

To sophomores, juniors, and seniors going to the correct classroom, remembering locker combinations, or just feeling confident is almost routine. But to freshmen, who have never been in Elmhurst before, this is not as simple. These anxieties soon disappear and left are some calm, cool, and collected students.

School Daze

Ahh . . . the hazy, crazy days of school. The times shared, spent, borrowed or stolen. What did it matter as long as we were there? The way we spent our spare time made up a large part of our life as a student. The lead in the fall play, first trumpet in concert band, or vice-president of the Afro-American club is just a sampling. Taking part in any activity at school can give you any number of opportunities for new experiences, new friends and new means of broadening our horizons. Opening new doors can be like opening your eyes. There can always be an adventure around the corner as long as you are looking in the right places. Making yourself open to all the options that are presented to you is a way to make yourself feel like part of the school. The wide range of activities offered at Elmhurst are a way to steer yourself clear of boredom and having too much time on your hands. Being a part of any group, club or organization could never be a waste of time, for these experiences are the stuff memories are made of. Looking back on the days you spent in high school, instead of the tests and homework, you are most likely to remember hitting the right notes and taking that final bow.

"A touch of the master himself." Peter Flimsey (Joe Webster) produces a magnifying glass to examine a curious spot he has noticed on a chair in the sitting room.

Pamela Reynolds, as a James Bondian character Charity Haze, receives an intent, searching look from tough guy private eye Roi Cechvala.

Most of the cast of "The Butler Did It", directed by Ms. Geibie, assembled in the luxurious living room of the stately mansion to listen to Haversham (Beki Wiggin) relate her story about the face in the window.

The Plot Thickens

The lights dim on a half empty stage. A hush falls upon the audience as Act I, Scene 1 of the delightful drama "Our Town" unfolds before them. EHS's fall play focused around two adolescent people in a small town, George and Emily. The strange twist to this play was that it had little scenery and was a realistic view of life in a small town. The Thornton Wilder play is designed to stretch the acting abilities of the actors involved. Our production showcased the talents of our many fine students.

"Watson, I believe I've got something!" Whodunnit? The butler did it, of course. But no butler showed his face in EHS's spring play. The actors in "The Butler Did It" took their antics from some of Hollywood's greatest detectives: Miss Marple, Charlie Chan, and the "Thin Man" couple. The scene was laid on a mysterious island inhabited by Miss Maple, her secretary, a goofy maid, and seven illustrious guests. The twists and turns the detectives took were mind-boggling as well as hilarious. By the end of the last scene a single question floated through the minds of all those in the audience, "Who really dunnit?" Why, the maid, of course.

"... the postman brought it just the same." Contemplating life and its many diversities are George and Rebecca also known as Tavis Schlundt and Corina Dollarhite.

As the plot proceeds, Simon Stimpson (Jeff Ladig) directs the local church choral group.

The Sounds of Music

What could be more beautiful than the lilting voices of young adults raised in song? Making beautiful music is what our choral groups do best. If you happened to have caught one of their performances you would have noticed that many different styles and types of songs fall from their lips and are delivered to perfection. The songs are a sound to behold.

Seventy-six Trombones Lead the Big Parade . . .

... Well two were sufficient for the 1986 Marching Band. What they lacked in numbers, they made up for in spirit. Trudging through rain and mud or sweltering for hours in the burning sun are tortures that can only be faced by a select few. The rigors faced by the marchers are numerous, but they always manage to pull through with their Trojan pride riding on top. All the work that goes into a show is well worth it for the members who, win or lose, always consider themselves number one.

Playing the Classics

What can be said about concert band? As a matter of fact quite a lot! The members of this band do a lot more than toot a horn and bang a drum. The musicians are expected to study and perform and they are tested on their musical knowledge. You must know about rythmn, tempo and timing, which take a considerable amount of concentration and expertise. There are many talented musicians in Concert Band who go to competitions and are awarded the highest ratings. So the next time you hear about concert band, don't think, "Classical music . . . boring!" think, "A valuable contribution to my school."

Let the Music Play

You can't get away from the upbeat rhythm of the Elmhurst Pep Band. At every basketball game they could be heard playing catchy tunes while the winter guard dazzled the audience with jazzy routines. Together they added to the excitement of the game. Many hours of practice went into the halftime and pregame songs and performances. The band and guard are not given academic credits for their work; however, since they like doing it the audience's response is their reward.

STUDENT COUNCIL

A Spirit-filled Group

Student Council began the year with a large group of enthusiastic kids. Though by the end of the year the number had dwindled some, and there had been much reshuffling of the officers, the enthusiasm was still there in full force. Among their annual projects were Homecoming and spirit week, carnation sales, and all their dances. There was talk of a one-day exchange program with the North Side Student Council, but unfortunately plans fell through. However, the whole year was a success, under the leadership of President Angie Skaggs.

Larry Moyer, Andy Birch, and Matt White bring a load of canned goods into the school during the Miss Virginia assembly. Student Council's annual can drive was once again a success.

Ups and Downs

The Afro-American Club helps Elmhurst students learn about African heritage. The club has had a very successful year which has included fund-raisers and the organization of school dances. The AFS (American Field Service) had some trouble getting off the ground this year. They have had trouble because of the non-settlement of the teacher's contract. They were not the only club that felt the effects of this dispute between the teachers and the Ft. Wayne Community Schools.

If you've ever passed by the pub room during fourth or sixth period you may have noticed that it is always buzzing with continuous activity. "Where is a cropper?", "Copy due NOW!", and "Don't touch anything!" are just a few of the phrases you may encounter. How a bunch of words and pictures come together to form a newspaper or yearbook is quite amazing, even to some staff members. Being a staff member does require that you have a certain creative flair and be able to handle the pressure of deadlines. The yearbook and newspaper are a constantly changing entity at EHS as the people behind them come up with newer and fresher ideas. Keeping up with the times and finding a look that works is the responsibility of each staff. Capturing the atmosphere of a school requires a lot of thought and expertise on the part of the writer or the photographer. The Anlibrum and Advance are much more than mere yearbook and newspaper, they are memories and nostalgia which we will carry with us long after our high school years.

With a trained eye, Tisa Church bends diligently over her work and applies true professional grit as exchange editor.

Helping Hands

If you are ever lost at a school function or need helpful service of any kind the people to turn to are the ones in red. The Redcoats, aptly named, are the helpful students who refill your coffee or orange juice at the father's breakfast and they are the ones who pass out information and direct lost visitors around the school.

Giving help in another area are the Grappler Girls. These girls help out the wrestlers by keeping score, moving mats and making sure they have their daily amount of citrus. Helpful people make living on the edge a little easier and a lot more fun.

Community Spirit

The Women Mentor's club at EHS gives junior and senior girls the chance to learn more about the opportunities for women in the working world. Having speakers come in from businesses around the community help young women choose careers that might interest them in the future.

The SADD chapter at EHS has been a busy organization this year. Not only did they hold a dance and have candy sales, but they also competed in community contests. The SADD chapter does not wish to preach, but to inform EHS students on the hazard of drinking and driving. With the help of these clubs, EHS students are learning more about the world and the people around them. Hopefully with more organizations like these, students will start taking a more active role in the community.

Getting Ahead

One of the most successful clubs at EHS is the DECA club. DECA has grown immensely in the past few years. The club helps students get ahead in the working world by teaching marketing education and on the job experience. The DECA club has sponsored many sales, dances and car washes. The whole year culminated with a banquet at the end of the year.

The COE club has been equally successful this year. The COE club teaches students who are interested in the field of business. Having the ability to get ahead in the world of business is one that will be very beneficial. Many students get a head start by joining the DECA or COE clubs. Training the future businessmen and businesswomen of Fort Wayne is not an easy job, but it is handled beautifully by the staff here at Elmhurst.

Keep Growing

Here at EHS one sport that is growing larger every year is soccer. Isn't soccer the sport of Kings? Well maybe not, but it is the sport of Trojans. The Elmhurst soccer club is very competitive in both indoor and outdoor leagues. However, the theme, for the Trojans, wasn't to win, but to have fun. There was, however, a serious and very competitive side to the team which produced an overall strong season.

Many people don't know the intricacies of bowling. Lacing up the shoes just right, taking the correct amount of steps on the approach, balancing the delivery, getting just the right amount of spin on the ball, all of these things and many more are vitally important when embarking on the adventure of bowling. The bowling club had a very successful season and there were many strikes and spares. Shagging the gutter balls was the responsibility of team sponsor Mr. Bowman. The club will return next year and hope to have another successful season.

King's Influence

When you think of the great speakers of our time Martin Luther King surely comes to mind. King had the ability to move people with his words which is a gift that only a few people possess. The Martin Luther King's of tomorrow are being nurtured around the world. The speech team, here at EHS, helps young people prepare for public speaking and oration. Many talented people make up this group who spend many hours studying and practicing to compete in sectional, regional and state competitions.

Martin Luther King was also a great leader as well as a speaker. The Project Lead club at EHS helps young people develop leadership qualities which will be useful to them in the future. The Project Lead club has been very busy this year sponsoring many events. Dances, sales, and the highly successful alley rally are just a few. King was a leader of people and he is looked up to by many at EHS. Enriching young minds and letting teens know that their is more out there for them than they might think is the goal of many clubs here. Life on the edge can open new doorways to new ideas.

Keeping busy makes day short

As we all know, the days during the school year can become quite long and very tedious. Devising a way to keep boredom to a minimum have been Ms. O'Connell and Mr. Williams. Their classes have certainly been keeping busy this year with many activities and more to come next year. Along with field trips and fundraisers the classes kept busy in other ways. During Spirit Week they tied for first place with Mrs. Banks' class in the door decorating contest. They also raised a couple hundred dollars selling caramel apples which they made themselves. They will use the money to put back into the program for next year. Ms. Rosman's class has also been very busy. Her hearing impaired students have been involved in many activities at EHS. She had a football player, a band student, and a statistician. Next year will be an even busier year for Ms. Rosman as the whole Northrop hearing impaired program will be moved to EHS. Maybe keeping busy is an understatement.

As Marc Patterson bends studiously over his homework, Ms. Rosman gives some helpful advice.

Florida Maxwell works diligently as she punches in a program in her computer training class which is another of the many choices at RVS.

The art of wig hair design can be a tricky process and one that should be handled carefully as shown by Tracy Ybarra.

Calvin Lee chose the Class A restaurant program as his choice at RVS. While working in food service he has the chance to learn life skills.

Getting It Done Right

If you wanted to get a head start in your future career, one way you might go about it is by enrolling in Regional Vocational School. By joining the RVS program you get on-the-job training in your career while still in high school. Being in RVS requires that you be down at the Vocational building part of the day and at Elmhurst the other part. You can train in various areas, such as child care, cooking, automotive, and computers. Being trained in your specific career is really a way to get the job done right. The help and training given by the RVS program has helped many students to success and in future years will help many more.

Sophomore Gabrielle Schmidt seems to be surprised as she searches her purse.

These sophomores show that a little fun makes a well-rounded person, not to mention interesting.

Sophomores Set Standards

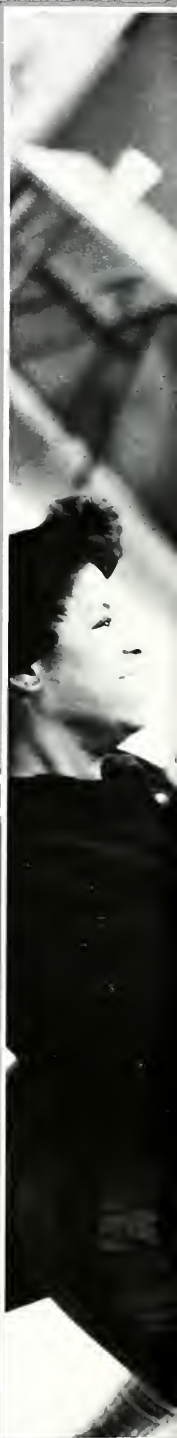

Achievers. A title fit for the final class of the 1980's. We have experienced the fears of being freshmen. The feeling of unsureness. Now we are ready to start the climb. Striving for our inner goals. Prepared to conquer life's temptations. We, as sophomores, must ascend upward from naive newcomers to wise, confident role models. We believe in ourselves and work to move onward. This year produced a blend of students with different abilities and different dreams but combined them to make a spectacular year.

ONWARD AND UPWARD

Protons, neutrons and electrons. Sophomore Mike Webb takes time to stretch in Mr. Fry's physical science class.

Erin Bohnke and Julie Sprouls share a little laugh together as they enjoy time away from schoolwork.

Todd Felger spends his Friday night with a basketball and a hoop. Many games take time from the weekends but dedication is the key.

A group of loyal fans turned out for an EHS basketball game, decked out in shades, shorts and spirit.

Sophomore Shelly Dowdell receives an order to "HAVE FUN" the entire weekend.

Friday night is PARTY NIGHT!

A teenager's dream. Those two days of total relaxation and entertainment. Time to forget the pressures of school and enjoy 48 hours filled with friends, parties, games, food, and sleep. After a week of homework, tests, and studying, the weekend pumps sanity back into Elmhurst student's fatigued minds. Its main purpose, however, is to prepare you for the upcoming Monday.

Senior Sonja Carlin is finding out that driving has its ups and downs. After fighting the continuing snow she manages a smile.

Riding the bus may be an inconvenience but freedom is just around the corner for freshman Tim Townsend.

“On the road again”

Most sophomores experience no pleasure so great as the one they experience as they walk out the door of the License Bureau with their brand new driver's license clutched in their sweaty palms. It is a day of new feelings, for no longer must you rely on good old Mom and Dad. You feel relief, an uplifting freedom that carries you away on a tide of happiness. What a day . . . a milestone in your life. No other accomplishment could be so important. As you head for home, no other thoughts enter your head as you sit proudly behind the wheel of Dad's car. How happy you are, you exude self-confidence until the fatal day that you come to that startling realization that Dad's car is Dad's.

A car isn't always an advantage. Especially if it is covered in snow. EHS's parking lot hosted many guests as a blizzard brewed.

Hours of studying, driving examinations, and terrible I.D. pictures are all forgotten once you are behind the wheel. Barb Gensic experiences her first spin.

'89 SO FINE

Striving to overcome obstacles. Fighting to be on top. Taking on new responsibilities. New doors are being opened, opportunity shines through. Knowledge grows within us to help us along the way. We, the class of '89, will forever be strong. A sigh of uncertain relief is released by last year's sophomores knowing that less than two years are left before they are released to face the world alone. It is the unknown that lies beyond which keeps the spirit of '89. If these feelings remain we undoubtedly will conquer all.

Learning to communicate well is the major aspect of speech class. Sophomores Tracey Leeper and Alice Stanley discuss the latest notes.

More to Lunch than sticky rolls

After devouring one of Elmhurst's nutritious lunches, many students rush to the gymnasium ready to partake in an exciting game of basketball, ping-pong, or even euchre. Others take advantage of the extra time to catch up on homework, visit with friends, or just take a break before their next class. Lunch time represents one half hour of rest and relaxation before confronting the calamities of the afternoon.

The Brains Behind the (student) Body

Sophomores have tremendously advanced their treasury this past year with the support of the class of '89. Sandy Mann, their fearless leader, immediately took charge and expanded her loyalty to her class by conducting various fundraisers with the help of Wendy Stein, Dawn McKinley, and Angie Maynard (vice President, Secretary, and Social Chairperson; respectively) Planning for their junior prom was a major goal and the "strong sophs" pulled it off and vowed to make their prom "the best ever!!"

Passing Period

The bell! Students jump out of their seats into the noisy crowd in the halls. They join their friends for a quick chat before going to the restrooms to refresh. After rushing to their lockers to get books, they race to class to copy homework from a friend. The bell rings and a few late stragglers come through the door gasping for breath. "Time to take roll, class," the teacher announces, another 55 minute period begins.

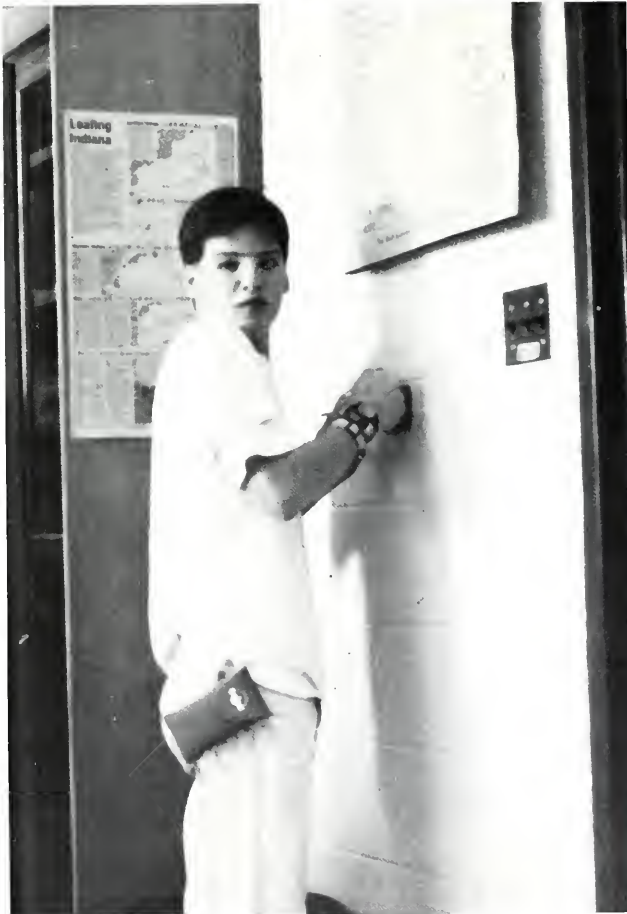

Look out! Sophomore Felicia Page shows everyone that she has what it takes to dress up an Elmhurst corridor.

With only five minutes to stop at lockers, grab books, and freshen up, how could anyone join in a conversation? Amy Hayes and Patty Malott defy the odds as they stand and chat.

Caught in the act of murdering an innocent pencil is sophomore Chris Harter. Elmhurst's sharpeners have been known to demolish entire pencils.

Reaching Beyond

Often students ponder the philosophical thought of "Is there life after school?" Look above and beyond those dark and dingy classroom walls and discover the pleasurable pastimes of our idle moments. From the Morp to the Prom to our hangouts and our dream cars. You're only young once, so live it to the fullest. But it's not always fun and frolic. Sometimes we have to give a little at the times when others are less fortunate. So let's look above and beyond the realm of school to our society, community and to our own needs; so hop on a surfboard and "catch the wave."

Friends and good times head the list of number one priorities among EHS students. After a long tiring week of homework and tests it's a great relief to break loose from the tension and just enjoy the company of friends.

Confetti & streamers are not needed for this group. Five shining faces show a feeling of togetherness between friends and teachers.

Looking Good! These two, Jody Vachon and Diana Joker, have really got it together. Watch out when these two hit the dance floor.

The floor vibrates from the impact of pounding feet; students shriek with delight as Mr. Kendall yells out the title of a favorite tune. A change of scene: with arms wrapped around each other, the couples sway to a romantic ballad, surrounded by dancing prisms. The snowflakes of a winter dance shimmer into shiny, red foil hearts. Iridescent lights magically change ordinary gym walls into Cinderella's ballroom . . . but only until the clock strikes curfew.

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett take a break from chaperoning to share a special moment.

DROP!

Calling something a dance doesn't mean that is the only activity. This group of friends prefer to sit in the corridor and socialize.

Tony Mante jumps back in surprise-or is this a new dance step?-at the flash of a camera.

Is this a chorus line? Some of Elmhurst's girls rock to the sound of Mr. Kendall and the latest tunes.

Showing their happy-go-lucky and carefree natures while frolicking on the bleachers at the Homecoming Game are Dave Minnick and Mike Whitesell.

Friends Are True Forever

Friends always seem to be there when you want someone to talk to about problems. They're people you can depend on to pick you up when you're down in the dumps. We all have our own set of close friends whom we hang around with in the halls, and go out with to the malls or to the movies. Friends make our life fun and interesting, but most importantly, they give us someone to talk to on the phone.

Lunch can be enjoyable, believe it or not, when it is spent in the company of good friends. Lunch spent with friends seems to make the school day more enjoyable for everyone. Sharing a few laughs to ease the pressure of the day are Barb Strole and Jody Ramsey.

Quiet times and special times. When in "love", school suddenly has a new meaning. Studying for tests becomes more enjoyable when it's with your other half. Tom Biddle and Angie Krewson display their tremendous "love" for Spanish.

Are we having fun yet? What a dumb question, of course we are. When you are with friends is there a time that fun is not involved? When school is out on Friday there is no telling what these four can do. Shawn Miller, Tony Mante, Tony Webster, and Mike Whitesell demonstrate their wonderful grammar.

Free at Last!

Entering high school! A terrifying thought! New faces, new friends, new WEEKENDS. No more chaperones to watch over your shoulder. Freedom is your gain. Brushing seriousness aside you are entangled in the social web. If loud music and dancing is what you're after, Rock America is your pastime. The four dollar admission is your ticket to adventure. It is EHS custom to assemble at the Time Corner's Pizza Hut after attending a sporting event. The atmosphere combines good food, good friends, and good cheer. No matter what you enjoy, Fort Wayne has something for you.

Dances are a big hit at Elmhurst this year. Every dance this year has been a great success. Not able to wait for admittance, many EHS students begin to dance in the halls.

Piping hot pizza with dripping melting cheese, loaded with pepperoni, olives, sausage, and anything else your stomach desires, Pizza Hut is the place to go when in need of good food and a fun atmosphere. Exiting Pizza Hut with tomorrow's breakfast are Erin Williams and Barb Gensic.

The Blue Mountain has recently become a favorite place to meet. Enjoying live entertainment and the company of each other are Wendy Stein, Dawn McKinley, and friends.

One of Ft. Wayne's most loved Christmas treasures, now complete, found its way back into public view one reindeer at a time.

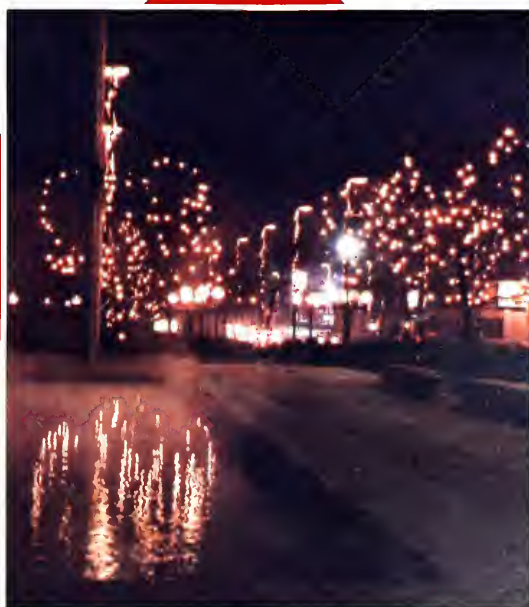

Another Ft. Wayne renovated relic decorates downtown around the corner from Santa. Both share the same history originally adorning the Wolf and Dessauer Building.

Dotted with glowing lights, the Lincoln National Bank building brightens the inky blackness of night.

Lights of the Season

A blaze of dazzling lights illuminates the blackness of night. With flashing whip and prancing reindeer, Santa's annual visit has arrived. Displayed downtown, his reflection glimmering in nearby windows, Santa soars skyward. Around the corner, a vivid emerald-green wreath proclaims "Merry Christmas" in crimson letters to passers-by. Every tree, every building is adorned with some glittering ornament, some jazzy decoration. Christmas spirit fills every niche of the Summit City.

As the warm mist rises from the pool, the shimmering lights add an eerie glow to the abandoned streets

An old fad still strong today is the punk style. Showing their versions are Nelson Catalan, Chris Campbell, and Tim Roop.

Long, loose, and casual is the fashion statement of today. Many EHS students are able to be dressy, yet comfortable. These outfits are versatile with many possible accessories. Karen Rogers, Amy Greene, and Pamela Reynolds know what's hot.

Studs? Jocks? Could be. Many EHS males feel a certain pride when wearing their letterman jackets, especially around our halls.

Concert T-shirts and leather jackets are and will always be in style. The statement this fashion makes is without a doubt cool and laid back. Jerry Berghoff and John Christoff show this statement well.

Laid back and relaxed is the style that will never die. Styles of the 60's, jeans and your basic sweatshirt, still hold strong in the 80's. Mark Glass, Laura Hinton, Wendy Dirig, Missy Scheiber, and Chris Spinner display modern variations of this old favorite.

OUTRAGEOUS

Action-packed fashion is in demand. Today's generation prefers brand names over the contemporary with Swatch, Guess, Forenza, and Benetton heading the list. This year's outrageous concoctions are cropping up within Elmhurst's corridors. Blasts from the past are exploding into action. Bellbottoms and pee-wee stacks went out along with the hippie era. We baby boomers are bringing back the go-go boots, psychedelic minis, short-sleeved turtles and tie-dyed jeans. This year just let your imagination go. Let your feelings take control and your outfit will be bold.

Success!

Once again the Elmhurst High School student body came through in helping Miss Virginia Schrantz feed the hungry. In the beginning, the annual canned food and clothing drive floundered. But last minute strategies and efforts put forth by students and teachers aided in making 1986 our most successful year with over 13,000 items.

Talk about cute! Mr. Burns displays the whimsical side of his personality during the EHS faculty version of "Twas The Night Before Christmas."

Grow up! Can you believe these two are grown-ups? The students as well as the teachers participated in this year's Miss Virginia Program. These two, Mr. Gandy and Mrs. Yoder, are just showing the students that teachers know how to have fun.

Two for the price of one! This year the participation of students and teachers was outstanding at the Miss Virginia Program. Everyone was completely thrilled with the creativity of Tony Simms and Mr. Bowman.

Can you take an educated guess as to what this cart is and what these students are doing? The most obvious guess is the Welcome Wagon with Welcome Wagon greeters, which is wrong, but close. This UFO is really just a few EHS students transporting canned goods to the gym via push cart. With Chris Spinner guiding the way, Andy Birch and Matt White use brute strength to push.

Teenagers have discovered the real purpose of rearview mirrors: something from which to hang favored trinkets. However, it is possible to go overboard, as this student did.

Rev Up and Get Gassed

Visions of a sleek sports car race through the dreams of all soon-to-be and beginning drivers. For some it's a shiny red Corvette, others imagine cruising in a silver Porsche. But most of us must settle for the old, abandoned, but still running family car. Sad as it seems, most teens have to settle for anything they can get their keys in. A fortunate few may drive Mom's or Dad's sporty car once or twice a week, but only the extra-lucky have their own really cool car. It's fun to dream, but for now we must face the reality of "junkyard rejects." Someday, if we keep the faith, those dream cars will be ours.

This car is a true classic. Ron West's Nova 350 puts all other EHS cars to shame.

Tara McArdle, and her car Lady Josephine, have a stormy relationship. While owning a car is a treat, dead batteries at unexpected moments put a damper on things.

It's a beauty, isn't it? Beginning driver Wendy Schmelting says, "Even though my little baby is 13 years old, it still runs for me."

While some teens keep their cars spic-n-span, most prefer the "toss it in the back" attitude. What better place for homework than on the floor?

"Will You Still Love Me?" asks '88

Romance . . . excitement . . . anticipation . . . PROM! As soon as the last snow melts (and sometimes even sooner) the minds and hearts of students turn to that memorable night. Finding the perfect dress, choosing a nice restaurant, and asking that special girl or guy are only the preliminaries.

This year's prom was carried out in grand style. Held at the Holiday Inn, students danced to the sounds of Unique Lighting & Sound. Another tradition is the crowning of the King and Queen. This year's King and Queen were Tom Hardin and Becky Jehl. Once again Elmhurst had a wonderful evening of elegance.

Beth Bohnke and her escort take a breather to watch the crowning of the King and Queen.

Prom Court: C. Spinner, M. Case, C. Metzger, A. Greene, T. Hardin, K. Dahman, M. Clauss (Prom King '86), T. Richardson (Prom Queen '86), L. Hinton, M. Glass, T. Mante, M. Scheiber, M. Whitwell, B. Jehl.

Matt Clauss, last year's Prom King, spends a moment reflecting on his year of reign.

Pictures make prom memories even more vivid ... however, photographers often aid in catching that "natural" look.

Being Prom Queen is something many girls dream of, but few really accomplish. However, Becky Jehl is one of the lucky girls to wear the crown, which was handed down by Tyra Richardson.

Working hard, struggling to get the homework done is Shelly Martinez. Juniors know the value of a plus report card, especially for the college bound.

AT THE EDGE

A long life's line we all come to a place where we'd like to just sit out and wait awhile until we can decide what it is we want to do. Unfortunately this doesn't always go our way. To be "At The Edge"; right above the world and its problems isn't always easy. Sometimes in our lives we come to stumbling blocks that later become stepping stones. To be a Junior means the first year of being an upperclassmen, the year of the prom, and a year away from graduating. Decisions must be made now for the future, for your life, for college, or for a job. It's no longer a time when your parents can make the decisions for you. It's a time when you, as a person, must stand on your own two feet; and cross over that line.

A time warp here at Elmhurst? Well maybe, but it's highly improbable. Rather one should consider modern day Russell Linnemeier during Toga Day.

Sporting the hats, shades, sweats, and sucker day is Renee Aldridge and Sonja Carlin.

you talking about?" asks Michelle Mowan before making a sign for the junior fan bus.

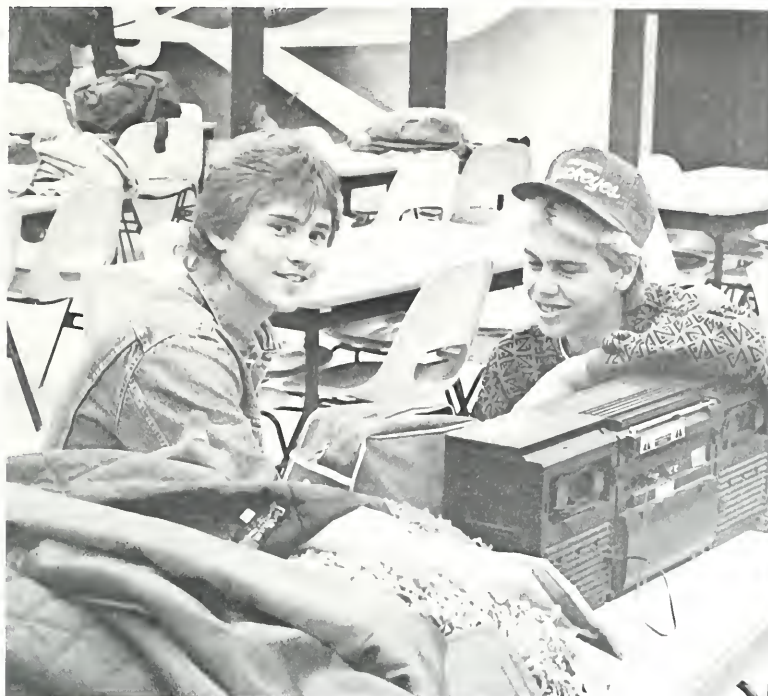

Number one of course. What would you expect! Laura Hinton shows us what she thinks of the Trojans.

We've got spirit yes we do, we've got spirit how 'bout you! Showing spirit is Tony Mante, Becky Jehl, Tony Webster, Michelle Case, Patty Davis, Beth Almond, Heather Eckert, Shawn Miller, Laura Yerrick, and Kris Foreman.

That's rude! We were talking! Jason Bohannon and Matt Falk discuss the music of their favorite band.

Juniors Show Their Spirit!

Logansport was the town that hosted the Trojans for the first round of sectionals in football. This was the first year Elmhurst participated in sending fan buses. The Junior bus was quickly filled with many of their spirited class members. On the excursion to Logansport, the juniors were filled with emotion and cheer. When the Juniors first walked off the bus they quickly got into the vivacity that would be with the Trojan crowd throughout the game. With glad and joyous spirits the junior class and other classes left the Logansport Berries with a touch of "Trojan Spirit."

A new Picasso? Are you kidding, it's just Tony Mante, Mike Whitesell, Tony Webster, and Beth Almond making a sign for the Junior fan bus.

Getting her homework together just to make sure she makes it to be a member of the class of '88 is Jenny Neuhaus.

The lone student, the unknown decides to take an after-the-bell snooze while the other students take it upon themselves to pass to their next class.

After School After Work

Helping others and yourself get through the year. That's what it's all about in school and after school. Getting together, whether it be for a school play, a sport or just trying to keep up with the work the teachers assign, getting involved with fellow students and extra curricular activities makes the time away from school seem so short. Clubs, sports, music, and plays make up a long list of things to do after school, but many research papers, book reviews and every day homework assignments make it hard for many to even think about joining a club or sport. Although it's not just the homework that keeps many people from doing extra activities, it's the car, clothes, and spending money that mom and dad seem to have that makes it so hard on the "studious" student. No matter if it's homework or if it's a job, juniors still find time to support extra curricular activities.

Helping to get things together for the spring play are Chuck Sutton and Joe Whitmer.

Working hard to make this year's season a winning one is Jerry Andrews.

Cherish the Time

With all the activities we are involved in, free time is a rare thing. There is always something to do or somewhere to go, so spare moments should be cherished. Where do they all slip away to? Sure you intend to get a head start on that book for English, but if you doze off or get a phone call and gossip, somehow the book is forgotten. What about those extra minutes at the end of class? You try, but who can resist those enticing cat-naps. It doesn't matter what you do with your time, just make sure it doesn't slip through your fingers.

Making the Best Of It

Your stomach begins to growl, wanting food. You look around to see if anyone has noticed the noise. Slyly you take a look at the clock, only five more minutes left in the period. Not able to keep your mind on your work, you begin to count the tiles on the floor. Finally the wonderful sound of a bell! Lunchtime! The lunchroom becomes one massive mob of hungry students. They now have 35 minutes to eat, talk, and play basketball in the gym. To most students this is not enough time, but we must learn to adjust and make the most of the time available. To most students, lunch time is very valuable and they use it with care, but when the bell sounds we all know it's back to work we go.

A Break Without the Rays

A week of sole enjoyment. Time away from teachers, school, friends, and in some cases, family. SPRING BREAK! When one hears these familiar words we immediately think of never coming back to school. We wish the continent would stay on spring break for the whole year. Florida, Canada, Texas, New York, and good ole Chicago headed the list of spring break get-aways. Although many spent a good part of the time in Fort Wayne, everyone seemed to have a good time away from school and teachers. Most would have had a better time if it were longer and warmer, but we all made the best of it. Break was over and the cold was gone, but the deep, dark, tropical, tans were in. Although many of the tans were from the hot spots in Florida many were from the infamous tanning beds. The weather was bad but the tans were good. SPRING BREAK is something we all will look forward to every year.

Taking Charge

Who puts together proms, floats, special decorations, car washes plus the financial backing for all? Along with help from students, and the sponsors the class officers usually get stuck taking up the slack. But sometimes they get in pinches and taking up the slack of fellow class mates can be a task. Many hours of decision-making, planning, and revising go into the class meetings. Elections take place the year before and the following year the elected officials take office. Although everyone expects the year to run smoothly, especially the junior year, with prom and the first year of Powderpuff. This year's class officers really got it together quickly. Starting the year with a close game with last year's Powderpuff champions. Though the year has had its flaws but although the class officer are involved in many other activities for the most part the class officers have shown us what true dedication can accomplish.

Greg Durnell comes back with full-force as he overpowers his opponent.

Is this the varsity locker room? Many may not recognize it when it looks this different . . . clean.

Finishing a cross country course can be exhausting. Tyra Richardson, Erin Bohnke, and Michelle Grimes need time to catch their breath under the shade of a friendly shade tree.

Cheerleaders expel as much energy as the players they are supporting. Time, talent and athletic ability belong to the cheering game.

Pushing the LIMIT

Victory! Defeat! A package deal. With one comes the other. Achieving that winning smile and victorious heart, Elmhurst's determined athletes secure the promised pinnacle. Seemingly unattainable goals are captured. Obstacles overcome. Athletes discover unknown strengths during long, agonizing hours of extensive practices occurring after school, on weekends, and, most of all, on their own time. A variety of sports for a variety of tastes; Elmhurst has an exceptional selection of sports ranging from baseball to tennis to gymnastics to soccer. Each focuses on pleasing the majority of students with different athletic abilities. So, Elmhurst, fight on and keep pushing that limit ever outward.

"Football is my life . . ." Maybe this is the phrase that is running through this particular receiver's mind.

Obtaining an injury during one of the various football games is something a player must risk, and Brad Ferrie was one of the unlucky few.

The pain of defeat is proudly shown in the eyes of these five true winners.

Sharpening that Fighting Edge

Records don't always reflect bruises, hard knocks or team work. Our football season ended with a three and six record which does not exemplify the long hard hours of practice and the sore and aching muscles. Although Elmhurst may have been a "David" faced with many "Goliaths", the Trojans never lost their pride, but walked away with dignity. One of the most exciting games of the season produced a surprising win over state ranked Bishop Luers. In spite of the Knight's good offensive record, the Elmhurst defense was able to limit the Knights to only six points. The offense for Elmhurst then ignited for ten points, beating the Knights ten to six. Elmhurst's persistance to excel may not have gathered a noticeable award but they were unfaillingly representatives of Trojan spirit and determination.

HIKE THAT BALL!!!

Hot summer days spent on a bug-infested field. Doesn't sound too appealing? Well, this is just a petty inconvenience according to EHS's own Freshman Football Team. While practices in the summer could last for hours, the newly arrived Freshmen did not let that dampen their spirit. Even though the scoreboard didn't look promising with Junior Varsity(1-6) and Freshman(1-5), this future sport at Elmhurst is in good hands.

Making the Shots; Taking the Chance

Courage, self-determination, and teamwork are the elements of a victorious team, and EHS's boy's basketball team acquired these skills using them to their advantage. Coach Dan Wilson conditioned his athletes with running, dribbling, and shooting drills, a method which has proven itself time and time again. In five years, Elmhurst has claimed the Sectional Title twice (1985 and 1987), and the Regional Title once (1984). As the season began, few attended the home games and Elmhurst's spirit was lacking. But as the mighty Trojans approached the IHSSA Tournament, rowdy crowds started to fill the vast arena in the Memorial Coliseum with the spirit Elmhurst Trojans are famous for. Defending their honor in our home court, as well as away, the Varsity Team paraded away with ten wins, and as heads were held high, walked away from thirteen losses.

Wrestling. When one hears that word, they think of huge fat men uncontrollably throwing each other down in a ring filled with people screaming "Bloody Murder!!". But high school wrestling is a totally different story, there are rules and it is quite controlled. Elmhurst's season was one that many could be proud of. The team record was 8-10-1, but many wrestlers achieved personal fulfillment. One word can sum up the entire season: SUCCESS!!

Many different holds and block techniques are learned and Brent Sherbondy uses his skills to his advantage.

Undefeated!

Tom Uhrick may well be on his way to the top. The first state winner to attend Elmhurst since 1985, Tom really has his goals set. Thirty-six wins and no losses is really something to be proud of and the entire Elmhurst student body recognized this student's superior talent by honoring him with a pep session. Tom will never be forgotten at EHS for on the main gym wall, his picture will be mounted among the other outstanding athletes in Elmhurst's history. Congratulations, Tom, and good luck in the future.

Tom Uhrick cools down after another win.

Volley that Ball

A sport of strength and agility; a sport that requires absolute teamwork and constant movement is volleyball. With hard work and dedication, this year's girls made both a productive and winning season. Practices began in mid-August with conditioning and extra stress on improving the vertical jump and speed. With only four returning seniors, the lady Trojans proved that they could put training into motion. School spirit was always an important factor that helped encourage teamwork and individual performance. Overall, the team finished number one in their hearts.

As all volleyball players are, the Varsity team is always ready for the unexpected.

SERVES SCORE IT

Injuries, pain, and defeat are three problems that Elmhurst teams don't dwell over. The boy's and girl's tennis teams suffered in points, but gained in sportsmanship. Enjoying oneself and pride in their organization, school, and themselves are assets both teams attained. With the Boys' Team (1-16) and the Girls' (1-13), strides in improving their various strokes proves to aid the future tennis years at EHS.

Flipping!

Strength, flexibility, and balance play a major role in the sport of girl's gymnastics. Elmhurst produced a strong team this season. Returning gymnasts Beth Almond and Laura Hinton were members of the All-SAC team, and Carrie Miller received an honorable mention. The gymnasts scored well in competition as Coach Ron Long, with help from Miss Booth, led them to a Sectional Championship. Many freshmen showed tremendous skill in this agile sport and proved that Elmhurst is going to stay on its toes in the up-coming years. So, Elmhurst, "push the limit" and keep on FLIPPING!!

With excellent coverage from the local papers, the Elmhurst Trojans entered the Regional Championship Game with spirit and energy (something that the Trojans are famous for). Winning the Regional Title was a dream come true for many of the young men, especially for seniors Doug Snow and Doug Louden, the two varsity pitchers. Doug Louden was offered a contract from the Milwaukee Brewers, but instead is attending ISU on a full baseball scholarship. Although many seniors are leaving, with confidence and determination, the underclassmen will be in full swing next season. Congratulations!!!

BATTING IN

Smiles and tears. Rejoicing and painfully walking away. Elmhurst Softball has shared moments to remember and moments wishfully hoping to forget. With a superior season (9-13), the girls' team proceeded to take the field with pride, energy, and enthusiasm. Heather Eckert, one of the many seniors on the team, attained an All S.A.C. title for her outstanding effort in her participation with the team. An experienced team is what next year is hoping for and that is what those girls have in mind.

GOLF

A blazing fireball soars through the cool, still afternoon air splicing the silence with its minute "whooshing" sound. Then-PLOP!! Striking the green, the golfball rolls toward the awaiting hole. An ever-growing sport, in both boys and girls, golf has become one of the popular sports at Elmhurst. On their home green, Brookwood, the EHS golfers paraded through and chose their turf. Although both teams were young, potential arose as the dramatic seasons progressed. So, Elmhurst! Set that ball, and TEE OFF!!!!

On Your Mark . . .

This year's boy's track season was a mixed bag of successes and failures. The team's record of 0-9 does not even begin to reflect the many hours of hard practice that were devoted by both players and coaches alike. The major problem this year, according to first year head coach Pat Boles, was the small number of runners who came out for the team. In addition, injuries and low grades further lowered the ranks. Two promising runners, Charles Coars and Lavon Walker, were injured early in the season and were unable to compete. Of the 17 members who started the season, only 13 finished.

There were, however, several bright spots on this year's team. Curt Vizino and Cortney Willis placed in the top five in N. E. Indiana. In the pole vault, Curt went as high as 14 feet, and in the long jump, Cortney's best was 21 feet 10.5 inches. Other outstanding members of the team were LaShawn Rogers in the hurdles and Eric Dorias in the discus. Outstanding freshmen this year were Anthony Sears and Steve Conrad. Many members of this year's team are returning and Coach Boles is optimistic about next year's team. According to Coach Boles, "We have many tough people right now — all we need now are numbers."

It takes many long hours of practice to become a good runner. In the end though, it is well worth it. Running are Anthony Sears, Tony Simms, and Eric Conrad.

After a hard run, Tony Simms takes a moment to catch his breath before continuing practice.

Style. Grace. Form. All are characteristics of the exhilarating team sport of track. Overall, the team succeeded with the help from sophomores Virginia Hicks (hurdles) and Shirley Scott (discus throw). Coaches Fry, Dowling, and Davis taught the team to have pride in what they were doing, and manager Tonya Bates kept the girls going with her spirit. Although the season record wasn't that impressive, next year proves to be better with the gathered experience from this year. With the glorious victories, the painful defeats, and the finishing strides, the Lady Trojans always came out winners.

ELMHURST

How Do You Feel?

A new beginning is one way this year's cheerleaders might describe the 1986-87 season. The group had to adjust to many new things, including a new sponsor and an increased number in the varsity squad. In spite of it all, the cheerleaders were a success. Besides selling candy and spirit pins, they worked through the summer washing Renwald's ice cream trucks and holding regular car washes. Between washing they held regular practices which paid off in a camp at Indiana University where they won two blue ribbons, six red ribbons, five white ribbons, and a spirir stick award. The squads were led by sponsor Cheryl Trammel, Coach Sondra Allen, and Captain Melody Schmitt.

Performing mounts requires long hours of practice, strong backs for the lower tier, and agile balance for the upper tiers. Sharp looking cheerleaders help add spirit to sporting events.

"Oh, say can you see ... " Elmhurst cheerleaders show their American pride as they salute the "red, white, and blue."

There are many administrative duties that the principal must perform. Mr. Horstmeyer will give these up when he retires.

Farewell and Goodbye!

May 1987 landmarked the retirement of three long-time Elmhurst educators: Mr. Richard Horstmeyer, Mr. Raymond Garrett and Mr. Nicolas Werling. These three men have dedicated many of their years teaching and helping students grow into maturity. Mr. Horstmeyer began his teaching career at Bunker Hill where he stayed for one year before moving on to Huntertown for three years. He joined what is now the Fort Wayne Community Schools district in 1956. He started as a teacher at the former Central High School and was an administrator at Central and Northrop High School before becoming Elmhurst's principal in 1973. Not being around kids is going to require some adjustment for Mr. Horstmeyer. "I'm going to miss the students. I certainly am," he said. "Kids are great. They truly are. We hear so much about the bad sides, but there are so many good sides." After retirement Mr. Horstmeyer plans to do some traveling, spend time with his family, fish, woodworking and do home repairs. He said that it's time for a change although he's enjoyed what he's done so far. When comparing school today with that of the past, he replied that the student-faculty relationship is better than in the '70's and that EHS in particular has become a more academic school. He added that after seeing some of his former students become fine doctors, nurses etc . . . , his greatest satisfaction is to think that he had just a little part in the development of these students.

KEEPING IT SHARP

Mr. Garrett started his career by teaching all math subjects (except calculus) at various schools throughout Indiana. Then he came to EHS where he has taught for thirty years. He chose this year to retire because he'll be celebrating his sixty-fifth birthday this summer. He jokingly added, "I've been through this stuff long enough!" After retirement, he looks forward to traveling, and mainly "sleeping in."

Mr. Werling, who has taught all social studies but has concentrated on U.S. History, began teaching in 1948. He saw a great deal of the growth of Elmhurst as he has taught here for thirty-five years. He is looking forward to doing some traveling, but he's mainly planning to spend his time at the golf course and just being lazy.

It seems almost inevitable that these three men have touched the lives and made a difference to nearly everyone who has passed through Elmhurst in the time that they've been here.

Even teachers can sometimes be childish. Mr. Reinhard is shown here performing in the teacher's Christmas skit.

Perhaps the proudest time for a principal is when he presents diplomas to the graduating class. Mr. Horstmeyer is shown presenting Tyra Richardson her diploma.

School spirit can sometimes take unusual and sometimes frightening forms. Shown are Mrs. Bennett and Mr. Reinhard.

Cooking for the People

As much as the students complain, they are actually fortunate to be served the lunches here at EHS. There are three lines to choose from. Such things as pizza, taco salad, ice cream, punch, and the infamous "sticky roll" are among the favorites. These appetizers must all start somewhere and that somewhere is the cooks. Each day, over 900 people enjoy some kind of meal in the EHS cafeteria, whether it be at lunch or an early morning energy booster. Food is man's essential tool for survival, but we all need someone to make it taste inviting.

Cleaning the Edge

Custodians must mop the floor after each event even when the event was the roast of the head custodian, Richard Brown.

Richard Brown left Elmhurst to become a custodian at Northside High School. He is seen here at his going-away roast.

At the beginning of each September when students return to school they find the lockers, desks, rooms, and the halls clean. All the gum under the desks, marks on the back of the seat, and writing on the top of desks are gone. Walls and floors have been stripped to the tile, cleaned, disinfected and resealed. Most students never realize the amount of time and hard work custodians put into maintaining the building. Cleaning is not their only responsibility though; they also maintain the grounds, service the boiler and air conditioners. The custodians do this because they enjoy their work and students here at EHS.

...odd jobs of delivering messages and working in the office, all need to be done, but ...and office personnel can't do everything. That's why the students are willing to give a helping hand. If study hall just wasn't for you then maybe doing errands (plus a 1/2 credit) was that eye-catcher. Whether or not you happened to be a service worker, give credit where it is due, to those who were willing to give Elmhurst a little extra.

STEPPING OVER

Your senior year is the time to make memories last. Your friends and family are an important part of your high school life. In years to come, you will look back on your senior year and probably laugh at some of the outrageous things you did with your friends thinking, "How could I have done THAT!" After graduation you will enter the real world where your life doesn't evolve around friends and school life. A job and college will probably take up most of your time. You will step over the edge of school but you will never forget the good and bad times you had there.

"Friends are very special, they're there to share the good times with, as well as the bad. Friends should never be forgotten. Their memories will be carried on forever."

Maria Prewitt

The seniors once again won the powder puff game during Homecoming. Shown are Jenny Kohrman, Carrie Miller, and Vicki Bower.

Kerrie Evans and Floyd Long anxiously await the judge's decision during a band and guard competition.

In saying goodbye,
there is no sorrow.
Because we're the future, we're tomorrow.

This year EHS sponsored a Career Day for all seniors, juniors, and sophomores who were interested. Elmhurst students gathered in the girl's gym where many different colleges, technical schools, and the Armed Forces were represented. Students had two hours to talk with these representatives about choosing a college. This opportunity provided students with information about costs and boarding fees, the advantages of the Armed Forces, and how to enroll in a technical college. This day let students talk freely of their expectations and fears of college.

The Armed Forces help students pay for college while they are in the service. Students learn skills while earning money for college.

Students were able to ask representatives about the costs and requirements of college.

A technical college is a good place to learn a trade that will last students throughout their lives.

Almost There!

The final weeks before school is out are pretty hectic for everyone. But for seniors everything is so rushed you feel the world won't move on without you. These last few weeks are always memorable. The seniors participate in the Senior Honors Reception and the Senior Recognition Night. The Senior Mother's Breakfast brings many happy tears to students and their mothers, but the Senior Breakfast is filled with laughter which can be heard echoing through the halls of Elmhurst. All this plus gown fittings and dress rehearsals for that "Big Day" fill the weeks. Finals are a worry for most and S.A.T. scores are a worry for others. All these things combined make graduation all the more memorable. Before graduation you can pat yourself on the back and be proud of your accomplishments over the past four years and think, "ALMOST THERE!!"

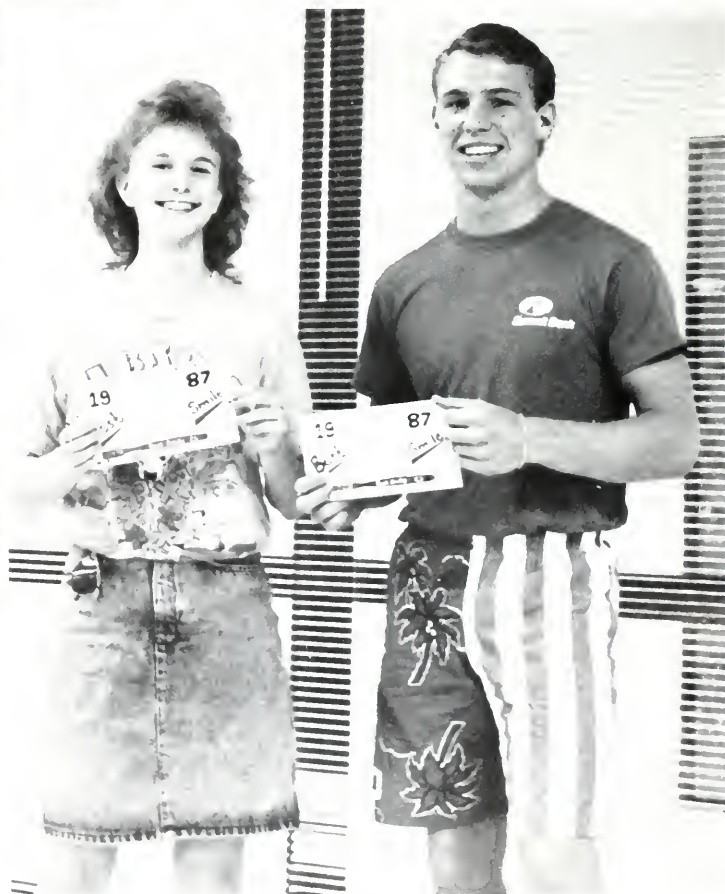

Andy Birch obviously wants everyone to hear this at that the Senior Breakfast and what better way than this?

Laughter filled the halls at Elmhurst on Friday morning before graduation rehearsal during the Senior Breakfast.

Sue Malott and Curt Vizino were honored with the award of having the best smile. As you can see they truly deserve this award.

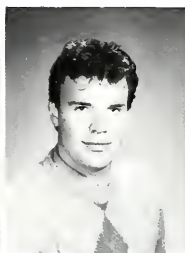

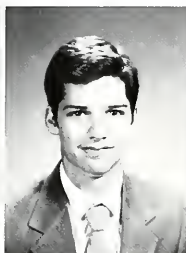

After quickly becoming friends, Seniors Dan Trenary, Doug Loudon, and David Seagly have spent the last four years together. All of them are about to embark into the world and are anxiously awaiting their commencement.

Over the Edge

As a freshman, you entered Elmhurst with great expectations of what high school life would be like. You soon found out that high school requires a lot of time and hard work. As a sophomore you strived to move onward and you worked your way up to being a junior; still wishing you were a senior. Now that glorious time has come and soon you will be over the edge of curfews and school. You will be able to choose what you want to do with your life. This is the time to enjoy your life as a teenager and make the best use of it.

Exchange Student

Veronika Thurner was one of the foreign exchange students at Elmhurst this year. She is a native of West Germany but was spending the year with Mr. and Mrs. Wittibslager. She chose to graduate with the class of '87 at Elmhurst but upon returning to Germany she still has two more years of school to complete. Veronika has two sisters, one who was an exchange student between 1984-85 in Utah. Veronika came to the United States to experience our culture and way of living. We were very fortunate to have had her at Elmhurst.

Veronika Thurner, our senior foreign exchange student, gives an enlightening speech about her home country during the foreign language party that is held every year.

After a heavy day at the Roman Senate, seniors Curt Vizino and Randy Schroeder model the latest in toga fashions. Spirit week allows fashionable people to wear the latest fashions.

GOOD LUCK!

The senior year is something everyone looks forward to. It's a time to be with friends, both old and new. Making the most of your time is something every senior does. No one sits at home by themselves on a weekend. They spend time with friends and family. The senior year has a couple of downfalls. SAT's and CAT's are two major tests most seniors are required to take. Perhaps their biggest fear is leaving school and entering the adult world, where they have to make important decisions that will change their lives. But whatever choice you make GOOD LUCK!!!

Leadership

Class officers have the crucial job of organizing the finances and activities of an entire class. They have a responsibility to the class of '87 to make their senior year as fun as possible. Choosing a fund raiser or sponsoring a dance are only two things the officers have to do. It was a big job and someone had to do it. Tyra Richardson was that someone. Andy Birch was the vice-president, Natalie Aguilar was the treasurer and social chairperson, and Laura Yerrick was the class secretary. Together they led the seniors through a successful year!

Last Quotes

This year the Anlibrum asked students if they would submit a quote to be placed in the yearbook. Responsibility, Friends, and Weekends were the three topics students were asked to write about. Here are some of the results:

"Without friends we could not share our hopes, dreams, secrets, or happiness. That is what I'll remember most."

Heidi Bernhart

"Good friends are hard to find. So don't let them go."

Tom Uhrick

"Weekends were meant to be spent with your family."

Twila Fowler

"Responsibility is the determination to work hard and having a goal in which to succeed in. To conquer your dreams, ambitions, and challenges you need this precious element."

Kim Scrogam

"Friends are very special people that become part of your life."

Bobbi Penn

"Responsibility is something you earn, it's not just given to you."

Janeen Underwood

"God created the weekend to preserve the sanity of students."

Beki Wiggin

"Responsibility is the key to success and organization in all things we do."

Dan Trenary

"Friends are the greatest resource we have as individuals"

David Seagly

"Weekends are devoted to catching up on lost time from during the week."

Tina Bustos

"Weekends are a time for family and friends, but when the smoke clears it's your time in the end."

Eric Dorais

"Real friends are with you through the bad times and are responsible for the good times."

Kathleen McCrillis

"Friends are friends forever . . . Through the good times and the bad."

Matthew Clauss

"Responsibilities are everlasting and the results from it are forever!"

Leroy Church

"Friends have to be earned by kindness not by taking advantage of the people you want as friends."

Karen Dollarhite

"In high school we gain self responsibility to go on with our lives and accept the higher challenges that are thrown at us as we move into adulthood."

Randi Schroeder

"A person that never was glad that finally it was the weekend probably has never worked hard in his or her life."

Veronika Thurner

AT LAST!

It's Over

Graduation! After four long and hectic years, high school is finally over. No more teachers, no more tests, no more reports, and no more school lunches. It sounds great and it really is. There will, however, be many things and people that will be missed. Some of your friends you've known since grade school, others are more recent acquaintances. Except for a few of your closer friends, you probably won't see many of them again. There will never be another high school dance, you'll never play on another Elmhurst sport team, and you won't ever be part of another Spirit Week. You can always come back to visit Elmhurst, but you'll never be part of it like you once were.

It's time to move on now. Some will go to college, some to technical schools, others will find jobs right away, and others will just settle down. Regardless, this begins a whole new phase in your life. Look back on your memories of Elmhurst fondly, but don't dwell on them. Now is a time to take what you've learned and put it to use in a new life. Whatever you choose to do with your life be confident of success. There's a great, whole new world waiting for you when you take that great step over the edge. Good Luck!

Valedictorian: Chris Fair

Salutatorian: Kent Scantlin

Graduation can be both a very happy and a very sad occasion. Saying good-bye to people you have known for many years is one of the saddest.

Some of those graduating listen intently while others seem to be absorbed in deep thought.

His last year as principal of Elmhurst, Mr. Horstmeyer received an honorary diploma.

"Just three wacky guys and a state senator." Pictured are Joe Webster, Roi Cechvala, Senator John Sinks, and Jim Duly.

FORT WAYNE

my neighborhood

For the past 5 years, I've been helping my neighbors here in Fort Wayne protect the things they value with State Farm Insurance. I'm proud of this community and grateful for my many friends here.

Thanks to all of you in Fort Wayne for being my "Good Neighbors."

We would like to extend our greatest thanks to Bob Mahl and Melody Lundquist along with all the people at Taylor Publishing who worked so hard on our book. In addition, we would also like to thank Root Photography for their fast and excellent quality service.

The long line of cars wait each afternoon for their chance to join the traffic flow from Sandpoint to Ardmore. Life on the edge catches up with those students who rush to be first out of the lot.

Never be afraid to push beyond what is known or accepted. You might be surprised and pleased by what you find.
